

Immigration Questionnaire

July 24, 2018

Q4. First, some questions about immigration. In 2018, Canada is expected to accept 310,000 new permanent residents. These are people who were born in other countries who have immigrated to Canada on a permanent basis.

What is your opinion on this? Would you say 310,000 new permanent residents in 2018 is ...

Too many – the number should be lower

About right

Too few – the number should be higher

Not sure/Can't say

Q5. There are a few broad types, or “classes” of immigrants to Canada. Of the 310,000 expected to make their home in Canada this year, most (57%) are “economic class” immigrants: people who come to work, including caregivers, skilled labourers, and professionals.

Another 28 per cent are “family class” immigrants: people who are sponsored by a relative who is a Canadian citizen or permanent resident.

The remaining 15 per cent are “refugee” or “humanitarian” class immigrants: people who are fleeing conflict or persecution abroad.

What are your views on these proportions? Would you say each one is too high, about right, or too low?

[ROWS – THIS ORDER]

Economic class immigrants – 57% of the total

Family class immigrants – 28% of the total

Refugee/humanitarian class immigrants – 15% of the total

[COLUMNS]

Too few – the number should be higher

About right

Too many – the number should be lower

Not sure/Can't say