Single choice

As you may know, more than 55,000 Canada Post workers have been on strike since Nov. 15, halting the delivery of mail and parcels across the country.

How closely, if at all, have you been following this strike? Would you say you have...

Followed it closely in the news and discussed it with friends and family

Seen some media coverage and have had the odd conversation

Just scanned the headlines

This is the first I'm hearing about it

Have you been affected by this strike at all?

Yes, a lot of mail I've been waiting for/sent has been delayed

Yes, a little

No, not at all

Workers want a 24% wage increase over four years and improved benefits including better sick leave. They are also disputing how Canada Post wants to handle weekend deliveries and the increasing number of part-time or contract workers Canada Post has been hiring. Canada Post argues that financial pressures make these demands challenging, as the crown corporation reported a $490-million loss in the first half of 2024.

Even if you don't agree with either side entirely, whose arguments do you agree with more?
